She Walks 5 Miles to Be Blood Donor

Bellville Woman Keeps Appointment to Aid Armed Forces.

A middle-aged Richland county woman walked five miles over country roads yesterday to donate a pint of blood to the armed forces.

By her act, Mrs. Teresa Brubacker, Bellville rural resident, helped the county to achieve the second largest single day's donation received by the Cleveland blood donor mobile unit in the state.

Richland county donated 156 pints of blood yesterday against the required 150 bringing the total donation for the unit's two-day January visit up to 307 pints. Niles with 159 pints holds the record for the largest single donation thus far.

Mrs. Brubacker's effort to swell the county quota was inspired simply by the eagerness of one patriotic citizen to do her bit. She modestly told Donation Center workers "it was nothing," when complimented upon her act.

She has no sons in the service but has a grown daughter at home. She was returned to her farm south of Bellville by a member of the Red Cross Motor Corps.

The highest number of persons to report for blood donations since the mobile unit first visited Mansfield last May appeared yesterday at the Donation Center in Bethany House of First Presbyterian church. One hundred and 83 persons reported and eight extras were turned away until the next unit visit because all blood bottles had been filled. Only 13 persons failed to report as against the 49 of the preceding day.

Although many persons had to wait nearly an hour before they could make their donations this fact did not lessen their willingness to serve, John H. Finefrock, blood donor chairman, said today. The wait was unavoidable, Finefrock explained, due to the large number of appointments that had to be made to offset the last minute cancellations and failure to put in appearance.

The unit will return in February for another two-day visit, Finefrock said, the dates to be determined later.

FOUR HONORED

Get Decorations For Bravery In New Guinea Fighting.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA —(AP)— General MacArthur awarded decorations posthumously today to four American enlisted men including an Ohioan, for gallantry in action in New Guinea.

A distinguished service cross for Corp. Daniel F. Rini will be given to his father, Philip Rini of Wellsville, Ohio. Corp. Rini was an infantryman.

Corp. Rini earned his decoration Dec. 16. Volunteering as a member of a patrol, he led an attack on a strongly fortified enemy machinegun emplacement, which had been holding up the advance of three companies. When the patrol was halted by fire from this emplacement, he went forward alone and destroyed the position by throwing grenades through loopholes, the citation said. He was killed later while mopping up an enemy dugout.

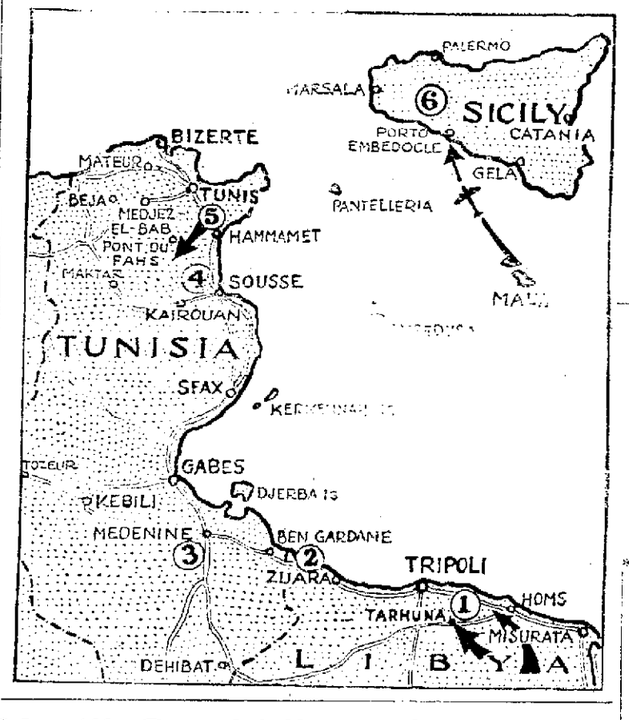
DENIES CHARGE

Massillon School Head Says He's Not Aiding Army-Bound Athletes.

MASSILLON—(AP)—L. J. Smith, Massillon's school superintendent, denied today deferments were being sought for two Washington high school athletes, scheduled for army induction today if they pass their physical examinations at Akron.

The superintendent was quoted earlier as saying he was seeking deferments for football star Bob Graber and basketballer Joe Harrison, who went to Akron today for the examinations.

Tripoli, Last of Italian Empire Captured



The British army marched into Tripoli early today and raised the Union Jack over the last of Benito Mussolini's vaunted African empire. The city is pictured at top before Allied bombs left it shattered and blackened. The map below shows the route followed by Field Marshal Rommel's Africa corps which has fled from Tripoli toward Tunisia. The British Eighth Army closed in on Homs and Tarhuna (1) in its drive for Tripoli. The Nazis were evidently moving into Tunisia. U. S. planes strafed forces on the road between Zuara and Gardane (2). Liberator bombers attacked Medenine (3). The Nazis have attacked southwest of Pont du Fahs (5) where they pushed the French back seven miles. Allied bombers based in Tunisia raided Tunis and Sousse (4) and fighter planes based on Malta flew north to sweep Porto Empedocle (6), Sicily.

You'll Get Milk In Quarts; Pints, Half-Pints Ruled Out

Milk in pints and half-pints will be a thing of the past after Feb. 1. Deposits will be required on all bottles and "extra" quarts will have to be ordered well in advance.

Although Richland county dairymen had received no such orders yet today a Washington dispatch disclosed that such strict regulations had been issued by Secretary of Agriculture Wickard to eliminate unnecessary expenditures in the distribution of milk. Other extensive reforms are planned in the nation's food distribution system, the dispatch stated.

Local dairymen said their mail each day contained new regulations and new proposals but that they had not been advised of the proposed elimination of pints and half-pints.

Restaurants and hotels would not be affected by this order but they would be required to confine their purchases to not more than two handlers unless each delivers more than 300 quarts. They cannot return unsold milk.

The milk order, as announced by Secretary Wickard, left to be worked out locally other distribution economies such as every-other-day delivery to homes and consolidation of duplicating deliveries. If those are not made voluntarily, a further order may be necessary, he said.

Other steps in the economy drive which will be worked out in the immediate future, Wickard disclosed, include a plan to assure farmers adequate prices for foods without raising retail prices.

GET PAY RAISE

Employes of 14 Cleveland Hospitals Win Boost.

CLEVELAND —(INS)— Fourteen Cleveland hospitals today raised salaries for nurses, technicians, orderlies, cooks, dishwashers, and others $10 a month on direction of the War Labor Board.

The hospitals are affiliated with the Cleveland hospital council and the wage increase involves about 4,100 persons.

DIE TOGETHER

Husband, Wife Dress Up, Take Poison In Hotel Room.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— An elderly couple put on their finest clothing, wrote specific instructions for disposal of their worldly goods, and then seated in deep easy chairs facing each other, swallowed poison and died this morning in the Deshler Wallick hotel, Police Corp. Al Boystel reported.

They were identified by Tom A. Sabrey, manager of the hotel, as Frank Bleile, 70, and his wife, Minnie, about 65. Bleile was a salesman and formerly lived at 1021 South High street, Sabrey said.

Sabrey said Bleile left a call for 6 a. m. When the clerk failed to arouse them by telephone, a bell boy went to the room and found the bodies facing each other rigidly. By each was a small glass which Boystel said contained poison.

MAYOR GIVES CHIEF WARNING

'Clean Up Gambling or Resign' Officer Told; 'Small Fry' Arrests Hit.

YOUNGSTOWN — "Clean up gambling or resign" was the drastic order of Mayor William B. Spagnola today in a fourth effort to compel Youngstown police to clamp down on lawlessness rampant in this steel-producing city.

Directing his ultimatum to Police Chief Andrew Przelomski following raids yesterday by the county prosecutor and sheriff's aides on four numbers lottery headquarters, Mayor Spagnola revealed that one place raided was just around the corner from city hall.

Chief Przelomski relayed the mayor's orders to patrolmen in a memorandum saying "clean up your beats or face suspension."

Various forms of vice and racketeering have prevailed over a long period in Youngstown but Mayor Spagnola hopes to get

WIDEN SEARCH FOR MISSING NAVY PLANES

25 Persons Missing on Cargo And Transport Craft In West Coast Area.

Giant Seaplane Disappears After 2,000 Mile Trip From Pearl Harbor.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Navy aircraft and army searching parties today combed wide areas in California and Arizona for two navy planes missing since Thursday with a total of 25 persons, including 13 naval officers, aboard.

A widespread search was being made in the sea and mountains near San Francisco for a giant navy transport seaplane which disappeared after a 2,000-mile flight from Pearl Harbor with 19 persons, including ten naval officers aboard. The plane carried a crew of nine.

Meanwhile, a joint army-navy hunt was being conducted for a navy cargo transport plane which is long overdue on a flight from Winslow, Ariz., to San Pedro, Calif. The twin-engined airship was last reported at 5:40 p. m. Thursday about 26 minutes out of Winslow, the navy disclosed.

This plane carried a crew of three officers and three enlisted men, cargo and mail. No passengers were aboard.

The giant navy seaplane missing on the flight from Pearl Harbor attempted to land at San Francisco Thursday and circled in the vicinity of the city. However, fog and bad weather prevented a landing in the area at the time. Radio contact has not been made with the plane since Thursday morning.

The four-engined clipper-type plane was being operated for the naval air transport service.

Announcement of the two planes being missing was made about 24 hours after the war department disclosed that a huge four-motored army transport airplane had crashed in the jungles of Dutch Guiana, killing 35 persons, including many prominent government and army officials. The navy did not reveal the names of any of the 25 persons aboard the missing navy planes or whether any of them was prominent.

DUMPS WHEAT

U. S. Puts Vast Stock of Grain On Market to Cut Price.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The government tossed its 235,000,000-barrel stock of wheat on the market today in a move to keep prices from advancing above the parity level.

The wheat was offered at prices equivalent to parity at the point of storage. Parity prices vary according to point of storage and quality of the grain, but the national average Dec. 15 was $1.37 a bushel.

Officials said that the bread grain had been advancing and that today's action was expected to keep market prices from going above parity as long as government stocks were available at that price.

NEW YORK — (U.P.) — Marjorie Lawrence's career as an operatic soprano was assured today, despite infantile paralysis.

Miss Lawrence, who was stricken in Mexico in 1941, sang the role of Venus in "Tannhaeuser" last night at the Metropolitan Opera House. The ovation she received lasted three minutes. As Venus, she had no walking and little acting to do. The role is sung from a couch.

Axis Forces Speed Flight Into Tunisia

British Jubilant Over Victory as Fighting In Tripoli Ends and Nazi Radio Admits Troops Have Evacuated City.

(By International News Service)

CAIRO—The 1,000,000 square mile African empire created by Premier Benito Mussolini with the tools and weapons of Fascist tyranny passed into oblivion today when Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's British Eighth army swept into the great Libyan port of Tripoli.

As dawn broke over the southern Mediterranean at 5 o'clock this morning, vanguards of the victorious army composed of United Kingdom, dominion and colonial forces occupied the city and raised the Union Jack above its gleaming white government buildings.

The Rome-Berlin Axis acknowledged this great British victory with surprising alacrity and in official broadcasts admitted that Tripoli had been evacuated.

Tripoli itself, scene of the first overseas exploit by American marines in 1805 when the United States struck at the depredations of Barbary coast pirates, fell almost without a struggle.

But heavy fighting in the hilly outskirts surrounding the harbor preceded the capitulation, and Tripoli now goes down with Ypres, Mons and Khartoum as a major victory in the history of British arms.

To Cairo and other outposts of the British empire which played a leading role in this great triumph which stripped Victor Emmanuel of Italy of his imperial mantle and reduced him to mere kingship, British Secretary of War Sir James Grigg broadcast a stirring message of congratulation.

"We have news of the fall of Tripoli," he said in a broadcast from London.

"To all intents and purposes, this completes elimination of the Italian empire in Africa.

"Destruction of this empire was an overwhelming show—our show—ours and India's and Australia's and New Zealand's and South Africa's and that of the inhabitants of British East Africa and British West Africa."

British civilians and military men grouped with Egyptian officials and foreign diplomats on the terrace of Shepheard's and other hotels and gathering places in Cairo heard this and other jubilant broadcasts with deep emotion.

Now and then an Axis station broke in with the terse announcement in German: "Amtlich Tripolis Von Achsentruppen Geraeumt," which means: "Axis troops have evacuated Tripoli," but in each case the Nazi announcement was dateline from Rome.

It appeared that Berlin was attempting to create the impression that Italians were responsible for the loss of their own empire, despite the fact that Adolf Hitler insisted upon the dismissal of Rodolfo Graziani and replaced him by his own favorite bootlicking general, Field Marshal Erwin Rommel, one-time truncheon-wielding street-corner policeman of Munich.

With Tripoli liberated and now in British hands, the Axis has lost its greatest port in Northern Africa. Best military information in Cairo indicates that Gen. Montgomery will waste little time in proctocols and formality and will push on at the earliest possible moment into Tunisia to play his part in the complete destruction of Axis forces.

In the last eight days alone, Montgomery's vanguards covered more than 200 miles, blasting out centers of Axis resistance east of the port under cover of ceaseless attacks by

PUSH: Russians Drive Into Kursk Area, Approach Kharkov

(By International News Service)

MOSCOW—Russian armies pounding the Ukraine have driven into the Kursk area, frontline dispatches reported today as Red army forces drew closer to Kharkov and Rostov.

The three objectives of the Soviet offensive are key points on the Axis winter line and the capture of any one would force a general enemy withdrawal.

Friday's Soviet communique disclosed that Russian forces driving southwest from Voronezh, were starting an offensive to outflank Kursk, which is 130 miles west of Voronezh and 120 miles north of Kharkov.

Russian offensives surged ahead today on a 2,000-mile front from Lake Ladoga to the deep Caucasus. Scores of towns fell to the advancing columns pressing on German strongholds.

Red army forces closing in on Rostov captured the important north Caucasus rail town of Salsk, 100 miles southeast of the encircled citadel. Russian columns advancing along the south bank of the Don were reported to have recaptured Konstantinovsk, within 65 miles of Rostov.

Soviet units which occupied Voroshilovsk yesterday were reported to have advanced 35 miles northwest along the railroad running to the Black Sea port of Novorossisk.

Capture of Salsk gave the Russians control of a rail line to Ros-

SLIPPING: Japan's Grasp on Guadalcanal Falters Rapidly

(By Associated Press)

Japan's grasp on strategic Guadalcanal island appeared to be slipping today, with the enemy's original forces reported cut down from 15,000 to fewer than 4,000, as Gen. MacArthur's headquarters announced Allied troops had smashed the last organized Japanese resistance on the Papuan peninsula in New Guinea.

An Allied communique said American and Australian jungle fighters overwhelmed the Japanese on Sananda point, wiping out more than 725 of the enemy.

The count of Japanese dead was steadily rising as patrols combed the jungle, mopping up scattered remnants of the Sananda garrison.

Field dispatches said Japanese resistance collapsed at 2:30 p. m. yesterday when the Allies stormed into the last two enemy pockets on the peninsula coast northwest of Sananda.

Twenty-four hours earlier, hard-fighting American soldiers had cleaned out the main Japanese pocket two miles inland from the coast, where 475 enemy dead were counted.

At 7 a. m. yesterday, dispatches said, 33 Japanese attempted to escape from another small pocket, and the Americans killed 32 and imprisoned the lone survivor.

Reports from the front said

TOOTS AND CASPER

GEE, THAT WAS A HUGE DIAMOND COLONEL HOOFER GAVE SOPHIE AT THEIR ANNIVERSARY PARTY, CASPER! IT WAS BEAUTIFUL!
I'M NOT ENVIOUS, BUT I WISH I HAD A RING, EVEN HALF THE SIZE OF IT--- HE SAID IT COST $14,000.00 ....
TOOTS WAS PLEASED WITH THE LITTLE WATCH I GAVE HER ON OUR ANNIVERSARY, UNTIL SHE SAW THAT RING---IT MADE ME LOOK LIKE A PIKER!
JIMMY MURPHY
COLONEL, ARE YOU TRYING TO MAKE ALL THE OTHER WIVES DISSATISFIED WITH THEIR HUSBANDS?
CASPER, YOU CAN'T KEEP UP WITH ME! A MINNOW CAN'T COMPETE WITH A WHALE, YOU KNOW!
Copr 1943 King Features Syndicate Inc World rights reserved
CASPER, I ALMOST THINK COLONEL HOOFER MAY HAVE PLANNED TO MAKE A GET-AWAY WITH THIS DIAMOND RING OF MY WIFE'S-
GEE, BOSS, ER---
LAST TUESDAY I ASKED HIM TO TAKE IT TO THE JEWELER TO BE SHINED UP, BUT I FOUND OUT HE DIDN'T TAKE IT THERE UNTIL WEDNESDAY-
NOW I SEE THROUGH IT ALL! THE COLONEL KEPT IT OVERNIGHT, SO SOPHIE COULD WEAR IT TUESDAY EVENING AT THEIR PARTY AND PRETEND THAT HE GAVE IT TO HER----
Copr 1943 King Features Syndicate Inc World rights reserved
YOU FRAUD! YOU USED THE BOSS'S RING TO FOUR-FLUSH TO ALL YOUR GUESTS
CASPER, THAT'S AN INSULT--- WHO TOLD YOU THAT?
JIMMY MURPHY
YES CASPER, IT'S TRUE! I LET SOPHIE WEAR THE BOSS'S $14,000.00 DIAMOND RING THAT EVENING TO MAKE ALL OF YOU THINK I GAVE IT TO HER
NOW EVERYBODY HAS THE LAUGH ON ME, AND SOPHIE IS SORE, BECAUSE WE WERE FOUND OUT, BUT IT'S ALL MY FAULT--- I THOUGHT UP THE IDEA!
COLONEL HOOFER, YOU CAN'T THINK WITHOUT A BRAIN ANYMORE THAN AN AUTO CAN RUN WITHOUT A MOTOR! YOU'LL NEVER LIVE THIS DOWN!
Copr 1943 King Features Syndicate Inc World rights reserved
WELL, IF EVERYBODY KNEW EVERYBODY ELSE'S SECRETS, THEN MAYBE EVERYONE WOULD HAVE THE LAUGH ON EVERYBODY ELSE--- AND GOOD LAUGHS DON'T HURT ANYBODY

1-22

MAYBE YOU'VE GOT SUMP'N THERE, KENNY?
JIMMY MURPHY
BUTTERCUP'S REAL NAME IS "KENNY"

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD — When America's housekeepers are in the throes of figuring out the point-rationang system, trying to put three and two together to add up to a meal, they may take some comfort from looking upon the plight of Hollywood, which already has to plan its rations months in advance.

Coons

Hollywood is already sore beset by shortages -- in raw film stock, in cold cream, in wigs, in leading men gone to war And it's becoming more ot a problem what to feed the players who are left what to feed them that is in front of the camera

What Hollywood needs for this task is a combination prophet-chef-diplomat the prophet to foretell what foods will be plentiful at the time the picture is released the chef to take what is plentiful at present and make it look festive, the diplomat to travel with the film and explain to rationed audiences that it isn't so that those lamb chops are just ersatz from the plaster shop and Hollywood isn't eating better than anybody else

Audiences are likely to be more critical of viands on the to the stars

screen as their pockets bulge with more ration cards The diplomat could interrupt the screening long enough to soothe the customers "Ladies and gentlemen," he could say, "your attention one moment please! That luscious roast Mr Pidgeon is carving--let me assure you, it is but colored putty, so artistically devised, that it had Mr Pidgeon drooling!"

On the other hand there is a school of food thought here that insists it would be sheer cruelty for Mr Pidgeon or any other actor to carve even a simulated roast when meat is scarce

There are some even more conservative who believe the screen should give up eating scenes for the duration glossing over such lapses when necessary by scenes showing hero and heroine at the kitchen sink washing the dishes of waiters removing their empty plates after the fact.

A meal served to Mary Martin Dick Powell and Victor Moore at Pine to Late had a lovely ersatz sirloin as the entree It then gustatory reactions seem convincing its sheer acting

But the studio has gone to work on a permanent supply of plaster roasts steaks and chops all tough enough to serve for the duration and varied enough so that audiences won't see the same cuts in film after film and start writing fan letters to the meat mistend of to the stars

FLYNN TO TELL HIS SIDE OF STORY NEXT

Will Take Stand After Recess As First of 10 Witnesses For Defense.

(By Associated Press)

LOS ANGELES—Defense counsel indicated today that Film Actor Errol Flynn would make a streamlined recital of his associations with two 'teen-age girls in categorically denying their charges that he committed statutory rape upon them.

Trial of the 33-year-old Irish-born actor, which started two weeks ago, was in week-end recess today after both complaining witnesses, Peggy LaRue Satterlee, 16, Hollywood night club entertainer, and Betty Hansen, 17, formerly of Lincoln, Neb., described from the witness stand how Flynn allegedly seduced them.

Jerry Giesler, chief defense attorney, said he plans to call about 10 witnesses but that Flynn, recently divorced from Actress Lili Damita, mother of the actor's year-old child, would not be the first to testify

Highlight of testimony offered before the state rested its case was a lurid description by Owen Cathcart-Jones, former Canadian flier, on how he and Miss Satterlee once last summer played hide-and-seek among caskets in a local mortuary.

During their visit there, the purpose of which was not explained, Cathcart-Jones said Miss Satterlee opened one coffin containing the body of an elderly woman and pulled down a sheet on the body of a Filipino, that had been mutilated in the abdomen.

Earlier, Cathcart-Jones, who is 42 and holds a technical job at an aircraft factory, admitted he had kissed Miss Satterlee on several occasions; that he had bought her clothing and took trips with her to nearby resorts and that she and her sister, Mickey June, once occupied his apartment while he was away on business

In her testimony, Miss Satterlee testified the former flier had asked her to marry him and that she had been "sort of" engaged to him

Cathcart-Jones who last April eloped and married another showgirl, Sharon Hurley, 22, said he had two children by a previous marriage, which ended in divorce.

WILL CHECK ON PAPER'S CHARGE

Congress Group to Investigate Report Marines Had to Unload Supplies.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—The house naval affairs committee will begin an investigation immediately into charges that ailing marines had to unload a cargo ship at Guadalcanal because longshoremen refused to work on Sunday, Rep. Carl Vinson (D., Ga.) promised today.

Vinson, chairman of the committee, said that "if it is true that merchant seamen are refusing to unload war material at Guadalcanal or in any other war zone, congress should take cognizance of it and deal with it at once."

"Our fighting men," he added, "should not be required to perform this work regardless of what hour of the day or day of the week it happens to be."

The report was first published in a copyright story in the Akron Beacon-Journal. It was denied by Joseph Curran, chief of the CIO's National Maritime Union.

SLEUTHING LEADS TO ARREST OF PAIR IN FREIGHT DOCK THEFTS

Sleuthing by Patrolman John Gilbert, aided by Patrolman Richard Hecht, has uncovered, in the arrest of two suspects, at least three robberies of freight shipments and an extended investigation is being carried on in an attempt to unearth other crimes

Acting on a tip from an autoist that two men he had hauled from the CCC truck line docks on Snyder street to a North Franklin avenue address Tuesday night, had given him a box of moderately expensive cigars, the patrolmen took the men into custody. They were booked for investigation

Detectives and patrolmen had picked up rumors of "black market" cigars and tobaccos being offered vendors in the "flats" district at greatly reduced pricese.

Yesterday Patrolman Gilbert said he obtained a partial confession from Roy Grubaugh, 40, of Seventh avenue, implicating William Parcak, 35, of New York.

Grubaugh admitted he and his accomplice took 2,500 cigars and two expensive batteries from the truck line loading dock, the officer said. He also told of taking a carton of smoking tobacco from the Pennsylvania railroad freight depot and a carton of chewing tobacco from the B. and O. railroad freight dock.

Parcak was being escorted today to scenes of recent robberies and burglaries by Patrolman Gilbert in an effort to possibly freshen his memory regarding the removal of merchandise.

Charges of grand larceny were filed in municipal court against the pair today.

SLASHES WRISTS

Confessed Embezzler Treated For Self-Inflicted Wounds.

TIFFIN —(INS)— Clarence W. Crobaugh, 48, who allegedly admitted embezzling about $300,000 from the Citizens Building Association company, of which he was executive secretary, today was treated for self-inflicted wounds at the Mercy hospital where he was placed under guard after removal from the Seneca county jail.

Sheriff George R. Steinmetz found Crobaugh with his wrist and ankles slashed with a safety razor blade, which he said he had concealed in his shoe so he could commit suicide if he was arrested.

When arrested, officers reported that Crobaugh had told them "the river looked good" to him several nights ago but he had since 'changed my mind.' Hunted since Saturday when he escaped after discovering state examiners going over his books, Crobaugh was apprehended in Toledo. He had headed the association since 1934 at $9,000 a year.

SAILING CLUB TO STAGE REGATTA

The Sportsmen's Sailing club will hold its mid-winter regatta for members and families at North Lake park Sunday starting at 1 p m.

Entertainment will include moving pictures shown by Charles Siegenthaler and Walter Winan and musical numbers by Glen Macy, Fred Constance, Harry Constance and Paul White.

August Grotegut of Ashland is chairman of the affair and Earl Pollock, vice chairman.

Families are requested to bring one covered dish.

ARREST DRIVER AFTER MISHAP

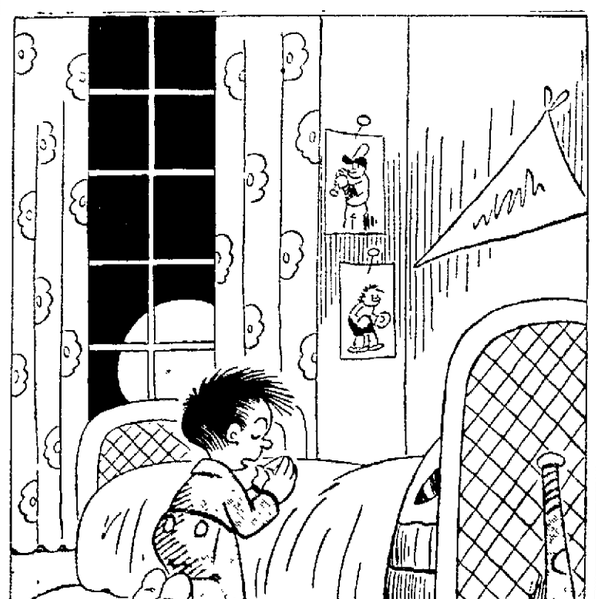
Police Claim Car Was Going Too Fast At Intersection.

Gerald C White, 18, of 71 Park avenue west, a taxi driver, was arrested late yesterday by Patrolman Roeliff B Hout after his cab had struck the car of Harold Oscherwitz, Cincinnati, at First and Diamond streets

According to the police report White "was driving too fast to comply with a stop sign" at the through-street intersection. He was cited to appear in traffic court Wednesday afternoon.

Melvin E. Ault, chauffeur of an Army auto, was unable to prevent his skidding vehicle from colliding with the parked car of Clarence E. McDonald, 1384 Springmill street, on Park avenue west last night. Patrolman Richard Hecht was told. When Ault applied brakes his car skidded on ice streaks remaining on the pavement.

Laff-a-Day



"—And please put vitamins in pie and cake instead of cod liver oil and spinach. Amen."

Some Lucas school pupils know better than the judges how good cakes and cookies entered in competition of the Lucas community institute were. They should, anyway. They had more of them to eat! In an after-schol period yesterday, when the displays were left unguarded for a few minutes, some hungry youngsters swooped down on the displays, leaving only a few crumbs on the empty plates.

Something new in the way of first aid for blood donors was almost put in practice this week by Joe Hetler, Richland county deputy sheriff, upon his return from the blood station. Given the usual badge that signifies participation as a donor, Hetler did not carefully examine the cellophane-wrapped lapel button, mistaking same for a pill. Earnestly he queried fellow donors "And when do we take this?"

Girl Scouts of troop 6 are embarking upon a new undertaking that eventually will bring delight to the children of a county home or hospital. The girls are constructing a doll's house complete with all the furnishings and they expect it to be a fairly sizable project. Incidentally the project will also furnish the troop with some first-rate knowledge of interior decorating since the advice of Miss Irene Figler, an authority on that line, has been solicited for that purpose

Sam Young, sanitary officer for the city-county health department, prognosticated the weather correctly at least once in his life, friends were admitting today. During a heavy snowfall early this week Sam declared it would vanish in sunshine rather than rain. He had tested an old Indian legend by applying moderate heat under a snowball which melted slowly and flowed to the sides. Had it dripped, Sam was taught, rain would have been indicated. Yesterday and today the earth's white coat faded rapidly beneath sunny skies.

CHARGE FAILS

Judge Rules Out Complaint on Poultry Company.

Ruling that complaints against the Matthes Poultry company, rear of 227 Poplar street, were too general, discriminatory and not specific, Municipal Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch today dismissed the action of the city health board asking abatement of the poultry dressing operations within the city limits

In filing a motion to quash the charge Atty. James V. Will cited that the nuisance charge was inadequate in that it failed to specify whether or not the business was offensive to neighbors because of odor, danger to health or other causes.

The abatement order was issued in October after neighbors had complained principally that rats were harbored in the Matthes buildings and made forays against nearby homes. Following a continuance in the hearing two weeks ago City Solicitor Leslie K. Wagner filed an amended affidavit in an effort to strengthen the board's order.

URGE LAW TO END ABUSE IN HENRY COUNTY

Jurist Declares Feeble-Minded Man Gets License Quickly At Napoleon.

(By International News Service)

COLUMBUS — So-called marriage mills said to flourish in certain northwestern counties today drew the fire of the Ohio Association of Probate Court Judges.

Focusing their barrage of censure on little Henry county, the probate judges without a dissenting voice adopted a resolution calling for the enactment of "any reasonable legislation tending to correct any abuses which might exist with respect to the issuing of marriage licenses."

Bowling Green also was mentioned in the fiery discussion of easy marriages. Judge John Baxter, of Erie county, told of an instance where a 15-year-old girl in his county wanted to marry a man considered feeble-minded.

Judge Baxter said the couple drove to Bowling Green where a filling station attendant referred them to a justice of the peace. They then went to Napoleon, Henry county seat, for a quick blood test and a license, he said, returning to Bowling Green to be married by the justice.

The bridegroom later was committed to an institution as mentally deranged after "shooting up a group of men on a sidewalk for no good reason," said the Erie county judge. He added that one of the shooting victims died.

Henry county in 1941, with a population of only 22,000, recorded 6,893 marriages as compared with only 4,059 in Franklin county which had a population of 388,712, Judge Homer Hammond, Columbiana county, told the probate judges' annual meeting.

Other speakers charged that in Henry county the state law requiring a five-day waiting period and stipulating that a woman must reside in the county is ignored Judge Joseph M. Reiger of Henry county did not attend the meeting

Franklin County Probate Judge C P. McClelland was re-elected president of the association and at his suggestion, association members amended the constitution to extend the term of president to two years and limit the tenure of office to one term.

Other officers named for the coming year were V. A. Bennehoff, Tiffin, first vice president; W. C. Wiseman, Dayton, second vice president; A. M. Barber, Wauseon, third vice president; and Charlton Myers, Hillsboro, treasurer.

Firemen Injured As They Battle Tank Car Blaze

TIFFIN —(INS)— Two firemen suffered minor injuries today as the result of the derailment and burning of six Baltimore and Ohio railroad tank cars containing gasoline at the Clinton avenue crossing in Tiffin last night.

Firemen brought the blaze under control only after a dozen homes in the area were scorched by the intense heat. An area within a block of the scene was evacuated because of exploding gasoline.

The injured were firemen Edward Miller and Arlington Beck. Miller suffered head injuries when struck by a hose nozzle. Beck was burned about the hands and arms.

Police and railroad officials estimated total loss from the derailment and fire at more than $100,000.

Police Chief Harold J. Fraley said a draw bar dropping from a freight car caused the wreck. Tracks of both the B. and O. and the Pennsylvania railroads were blocked for several hours.

Italy Bluntly Admits Fall of Tripoli

ROME (Official Italian Wireless)—(INS)—The Italian high command minced no words today in admitting the fall of Tripoli.

"Tripoli was evacuated last night after heavy fighting by Axis troops which turned westward," the high command said in its daily communique. "Fighting between mechanized and tank formations of the two sides continued yesterday south of Tripoli."

In Tunisia, the Italians claimed, German and Italian troops consolidated their "successes" of the previous days.

Italian planes were said to have raided the port of Bone, Algeria, and sunk two ships. Two enemy merchant ships also were claimed sunk by Italian submarines in the Mediterranean.

Bomb Axis Equipment Near Pont Du Fahs

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA—(AP)—German and Allied land forces continued fighting yesterday in the Oussel-tia valley below Pont Du Fahs and British and United States planes bombed and shot up Axis equipment, a communique announced today.

"P-40's attacked enemy vehicles and machine gun posts in this (Oussel-tia) area, while A-20's bombed enemy tanks," the communique said. "Hurricane bombers, escorted by Spitfires, attacked objectives at Pont Du Fahs."

Details of the ground action were not disclosed, but it was reported yesterday that British and American ground troops had moved in to help the French stave off twin thrusts southwestward from Pont Du Fahs by which the Germans had hoped to wrest control of a 50-mile long ridge as a barrier before their coastal communications lines.

RAF Makes New Sweep Over Ruhr

LONDON—(AP)—For the second successive night British bombers were reported today to have stabbed during the night at western Germany, which embraces the great industrial Ruhr valley and such important centers as Duesseldorf, Essen, Duisburg, Cologne and Frankfurt.

First news of the raid came from the Berlin radio, which said scattered bombings had caused civilian casualties and some property damage.

The RAF had been over Germany on 12 previous nights this month, including the heavy attacks on Berlin last Saturday night and Sunday.

German planes struck back by bombing several places in northeastern and southern England last night, but the raids were not on a heavy scale and while damage was done casualties were reported light.

BODY FOUND IN UNHEATED HOME

Brother of Heart Attack Victim Succumbs After Discovery.

TOLEDO—(AP)—The body of Miss Bridget E. Merrick, 82, and her dying brother, Edward Merrick, 78, were found last night in their unheated home by neighbors who became alarmed at their inactivity.

The woman had died Thursday of a heart attack, Dr. Frank G. Kreft, Lucas county coroner said today. The brother, severely burned, was on a couch nearby. He was taken to a hospital and died today. Death aparently was caused by burns and exposure, Dr. Kreft said.

PATROL AREA OF GAS LINE BREAK

WILLARD—State police continued today to patrol the area near Willard where a gasoline line broke two days ago and threatened "to shoot to kill" if anyone came within the guarded territory, despite the fact officials of the Ohio Emergency Pipelines, Inc., said there were no leaks at the present time.

Two breaks in the newly-completed line thrusday caused gasoline to flow abundantly in ditches south of here and even into the town itself with obnoxious fumes reported. Residents lost no time in filling buckets, pans and even barrels as the eight-inch line under 900 pounds pressure poured forth the rationed product. One million gallons pass through the line each day.

Reports that the oil would be valueless because of the water in it was met by those fortunate enough to salvage it, with the reply, "it works in our cars anyway."

NAMED ATTACKER

3 Girls Accuse Ex-Convict as Assailant.

CLEVELAND—(INS)—After identification by three girls, a 26-year-old escaped convict was to be charged today with rape. The man was tracked down by the father of one of the girls.

Police said the suspect had escaped in 1934 from Alabama state prison work farm. Identification was made by a 16-year-old girl, whose father effected the capture, a 12-year-old girl who was attacked Jan. 13, and by an office worker, 21, who said he attempted to assault her on Jan. 17.

MAYOR GIVES CHIEF WARNING

'Clean Up Gambling or Resign' Officer Told; 'Small Fry' Arrests Hit.

decisive action through his appointment of Police Sergeant William J. Davis as head of a reorganized vice squad. The old squad had made only a few arrests of "small fry" in the gambling world during the last several months.

Bombing of the Davis home last spring brought on a grand jury investigation and the subsequent appointment by Governor John W. Bricker of a special prosecutor, Atty. Simon R. Leis, Cincinnati, who is directing the anti-gambling and anti-vice campaign.

Davis, learning of his appointment as vice squad leader, said the mayor's action is "right up my alley." Unofficially it was said that the bombing of the Davis home was the result of his "one-man" war against gambling and other forms of lawlessness reputedly winked at by higher-ups in the police department and former city administrations.

Appointment of the out-of-town racket-busting prosecutor is expected, in some quarters, to bring an expose of some persons not so "holy" as their official cloaks would seem to make them.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, SATURDAY JANUARY 23, 1943

Drive carefully tomorrow—and you'd better have your tires inspected soon; maybe there's a weak spot.

Nothing has yet been said to indicate that the silver bloc is any less powerful in the new congress than in the old.

"Keeping up with the Joneses" is becoming more difficult—it's hard for folks to find the things they can't afford to buy.

Housing Shortage Imminent Here

MANSFIELD'S next big need will be for more housing—to satisfactorily accommodate even the normal population increase that will result from greater war activities in this city and immediate vicinity.

Desirable residential rental property is already difficult to find, as the 185 unit vacancies reported after a survey several weeks ago, include all vacant single homes, halves of doubles and apartment house units. Meanwhile a number of these have been rented and vacancies are steadily shrinking toward the percentage required to gain rating as a "critical housing area," in which construction of new homes up to a cost of $6,000 is permitted.

Under normal conditions Mansfield would already have had several hundred additional city and suburban homes available, and if there is to be a building program of any consequence during the coming spring and summer, it is time for preliminary steps to be taken, with a view to securing erection of substantial homes intended for permanency, rather than makeshift type of construction sometimes resorted to when work is hurried through to meet urgent needs.

In view of the small fraction that separates Mansfield from the required percentage to gain a "critical area" rating it would be well to keep close tab on reduction of vacancies, so that no time may be lost in securing this rating when due.

One Strike Ends, What About Others?

SUCH a situation as existed in the anthracite coal fields of eastern Pennsylvania during the past three weeks evidences serious weakness in the elaborate government set-up intended to substitute arbitration for strikes in settling labor disputes.

The merits of the case in the "wildcat" strike of anthracite coal miners need not be considered at this time. The fact remains that the strikers were under union contract extending through April and that they not only disobeyed their union officials but flouted War Labor Board orders and returned to work only after President Roosevelt had acted as commander-in-chief of the nation's armed forces, in demanding that they end the strike.

Now that the strike is over, temporarily at least, with loss of $2,000,000 by the strikers and resultant shortage of a million tons of much needed hard coal, an important thing is to determine whether such acts are to be permitted to continue, to the detriment of the war effort, or whether a way will be found to prevent work stoppages in production of war materials and commodities that contribute to the comfort and health of the American people.

Public opinion on this subject is revealed by a current Gallup poll. While such polls are not official or authoritative they have proved fairly accurate on other occasions. This one indicates that 81 per cent of the American people want congress to forbid strikes in war industries, and only 13 per cent insist on a right to strike.

In this poll the anti-strike sentiment runs quite evenly through all classes of citizens. There are 89 per cent of farmers against such "rights," 85 per cent of business men and white collar workers, 78 per cent of professional citizens and 75 per cent of workmen—skilled and unskilled.

Whatever the peacetime attitude toward strikes may be, the idea that a strike should be permitted to interfere with war activities is intolerable—not only to men in the armed forces but to all patriotic civilians as well.

Another Job for the Banks

BANKS must serve a double purpose hereafter. In addition to financial service, they will also render ration service. Ration coupons and stamps are rapidly becoming a supplementary form of money.

Money itself will be worthless without a ration coupon. Merchants who accept coupons must present them in turn to proper authorities before they can restock the commodities represented by the coupons. Instead of letting coupons pile up in stores and shops, to be bundled up and sent to wholesalers and suppliers along with orders for more goods, they will be disposed of through banks. Banks will handle the coupons much the same as they handle money checking accounts. And the merchant must keep a checkbook for ration "currency," just as he now keeps a checkbook for money.

The magnitude of the task of setting up a separate banking system for the new "money," in view of already existing labor shortages and other bank operating handicaps, will be formidable. But bankers, like farmers, workers and business men are just one more group anxious to expedite the winning of the war.

Siberian Threat Wanes

RECENT advances indicate that the Russians do not feel uneasy about the Japanese border. At one time it was said that the Japs had promised Hitler to attack the Russians in Siberia as soon as the Nazi armies reached the Volga. The Nazis did reach the Volga at Stalingrad, and still the Japs did not attack. And if their aggression was based on expectation of further German gains, there appears now less reason than ever to look for Japanese activity.

For the next month or so weather conditions will not be favorable to warfare in Siberia. But even apart from that, the Japanese have enough on their hands already without tackling Russia for awhile yet.

The grocer learns to know people—and he doesn't hesitate to mention names of the ones who are buying canned goods by the case nowadays, in an effort to beat rationing. You'd be surprised.

Vice President Wallace's proposal to supervise German and Jap schools after the war seems to call for Rochester's peculiar inflection in saying "Uh-huh."

The proposal to make tax-paying "painless" is no more convincing than the reassurance given by the dentist.

Consoling thought—most folks eat too much anyhow.

WATCH YOUR STEP, SISTER—THIS IS WAR!

Nation's Capital Badly Governed

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—With a population exceeding a million, Washington hasn't got a city council.

It's the worst mixed-up municipal mess in the United States.

There's what is known as a congressional District of Columbia committee.

But nobody wants to serve on it. Why would anybody want to do so? If you were a congressman from Kalamazoo, would you care to be a member of a city committee in Oshkosh or some such place?

That's the way it is here.

No Organization.

The place is totally unregulated.

It has no proper police force or fire department, no organization whatever, and it's a big town which requires management.

What corresponds to its mayor is Senator Pat McCarran of Nevada or Representative Randolph of West Virginia. Take your choice between 'em; neither one has any authority they agree on.

There's no city council, either.

There's no judge to settle matters.

The thing is just "Hatteras."

It seems as if, with congress, we ought to be able to fix 'em, but that's exactly what the town can't do.

Heck of a Situation.

A town knows its local problems, can settle 'em accordingly, but a whole country can't do it in isolated spots and in important ones like this.

In a little burg it wouldn't be so vital, but it raises hades in a place like Washington.

Suppose New York or Chicago didn't have any local government.

It would be recognized as a heck of a situation.

That's the shape in Washington.

It's to be remembered that the place is the national war capital and nobody wants to take a job at running it.

The birds with membership on the congressional District of Columbia committee want to get off. No fresh applicants are available.

SOMETHING very big between the U. S. A. and Canada obviously is developing.

It isn't a matter of politics but of evolution.

The dope is that the amalgamation will progress pretty rapidly.

State Secretary Hull and Canada's minister to Washington unquestionably have exchanged notes recording promises of post-war "union."

It's obvious that there'll be cordial co-operation

It isn't altogether political. It's economic.

What Uncle Sam wants, it's clear, is to tie the United States up with all the Americas, from the Arctic ocean to Cape Horn. It's to be totally western hemispherical.

How well England will like it remains to be seen.

Japan won't, it goes without saying.

China Satisfied.

I'd think we'd get along very satisfactorily with China indefinitely.

London, I'd suspect, might be jealous. Not immediately, but presently

I don't know how Canada would harmonize.

Latin-America is practically solid.

Argentina's a trifle reluctant, but it won't last. Chile's barely reluctant.

The rest of 'em are lined up 100 per cent.

The present post-war policy problem is the difficulty.

Heaven knows how it'll evolve itself!

It'll involve heking aggressors and keeping 'em licked, but how about permanently satisfying the rest of the bunch?

Morale Formula

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

ONE of our great business organizations used an advertising slogan lately. Sorry I can't remember the sponsor, but here are my apologies, gentlemen, and my gratitude for six words which should be immortal—

"MORALE IS MADE OF LITTLE THINGS."

Never have we Americans needed that phrase so much. "Morale"—that's a dramatic word. We've never used it frequently before and we're apt to attach a lot of fireworks to it now. We think it should sweep through us with a great surge of courage and exaltation, lifting us above the common fears and discouragement . . . blotting out our resentment . . . glorifying our lives. We think it should fire us to heroic deeds. And if it doesn't we feel cheated and embittered. But we're wrong. Morale isn't composed like that.

"Morale is made of little things."

It isn't a glittering parade . . . or a supernatural phenomenon. It doesn't fill us with rockets or poems, nor is it accompanied by brass bands.

"Morale is made of little things."

It's made of the little things that happen in us when we are quite alone. Physically we may be surrounded by many people—or we may be solitary, looking at an empty chair, a discarded suit. But whether we are in a crowd or alone, morale is always a private matter, a personal battle.

Morale is the conflict between your petty self and the ideal vision of your soul.

Morale is your spiritual battle front where you win or surrender the noble issues of life.

Morale is the choice you make between being a warrior, prejudiced human animal or a part of an eternal and magnificent cause.

"Morale is made of little things."

It is made of the smile you give when your heart is wedged in your throat

It is made of the patience and self control you exhibit when the office work is scrambled through lack of manpower. It is made of the special dinner you concocted for a worried husband and a clamoring bunch of youngsters in spite of the rationing. It is made of that extra war tax you are paying willingly when your pocket is already bankrupt.

It is made of the contemptuous words you withhold when you hear your neighbor griping over some trifling discomfort and your own heart is wrung at the thought of your boy in Africa.

"Morale is made of little things."

It isn't a sudden burst of strength or splendor handed from the heavens.

It's the common warp and woof of our daily lives. It's the plain stuff of our ordinary human courage and decency and kindness.

It's the brief bit of beauty we catch as we hurry along—

It's the hand clasp and friendship we stop to give—

It's the prayer we breathe when we hear the bells at twilight—

It's the tears we swallow before anyone can see them.

"Morale is made of little things."

GOD GIVE ME STRENGTH TO REMEMBER THE LITTLE THINGS, FOR THEY WILL WIN THE BATTLE.

Summary of Week's Happenings

Mine Strike Ended By President, FDR Acts as Commander-In-Chief

—By ASSOCIATED PRESS

THE WEEK-END brought an end to the strike of anthracite coal miners in Pennsylvania—after 23 days of suspended production of badly needed hard coal. This was called "the most costly strike since Pearl Harbor."

It was on Tuesday, after all other efforts had failed, that President Roosevelt intervened.

"As commander-in-chief of the armed forces," he telegraphed, "I direct all miners in the anthracite coal fields who are now out on strike to return at once to their job of producing vitally needed coal for their country.

"If this order is not compiled with in 48 hours, your government will take the necessary steps to protect the security of the nation against a strike which is doing serious injury to the war effort."

The miners had walked out in revolt against John L. Lewis' United Mines Workers leadership, in particularly protest to a rise from $1 to $1.50 in their monthly UMW dues. Once out of the mines, the workers demanded a $2 daily wage boost to their $8.50 average daily pay.

Lewis kept out of the headlines, although he repeatedly demanded that the miners return to their jobs, promised he would get them a "wholesome increase" when their present contract expires April 30 and the wage question can properly be reopened.

At Home

Communique.

Into millions of American homes during the week went communications from the treasury—blanks for the filing of 1942 income tax returns. Included in the list were some of the 8,000,000 who never before have paid an income tax.

In Washington, legislators took a realistic view of the tax problem, geared committees for action on a pay-as-you-earn plan to ease the shock of quarterly payments. Some congressmen called pay-as-you-earn "absolutely necessary," promised to press for action by March 15.

Regardless of new legislation, 1942 returns must be filed by March 15, the treasury said, and first quarterly installments must be paid on that date.

Silent Man.

As a motion picture theater chain executive, Frank Comerford Walker may believe that publicity is good. As a public official, he doesn't care for it. So, in 1940, when Walker became U. S. postmaster-general, he adopted a policy of no speeches, few press conferences, fewer interviews.

The 56-year old Walker may find it difficult to avoid the spotlight in the job into which he stepped during the week—chairmanship of the Democratic National committee, succeeding New York's Edward J. Flynn, nominated by President Roosevelt to be minister to Australia.

Pennsylvania-born Walker was raised in Montana, studied at Gonzaga and Notre Dame university, got his introduction to politics as assistant district attorney in Silver Bow county, Montana. His principal non-political activity: Affairs of the Catholic church.

Revenge.

Southern congressmen demonstrated twice during the week that they do not forget attacks on their long-cherished poll tax.

First to feel the retroactive effects of last fall's bitter, and unsuccessful, fight to outlaw the poll tax—operative in eight southern states—was veteran senate sergeant-at-arms Chesley W. Journey, who, at the senate's direction, once rounded up absent senators with arrest warrants, to bring them to poll tax debate.

As Democratic senators prepared to caucus, Jurney resigned, apparently in the face of reports that his reelection would be opposed. Immediately named to the $8,000 job was a former senator from a poll-tax state, Wall Doxey of Mississippi. Into retirement at $3,600 a year headed Jurney, a federal employe for 46 years and sergeant-at-arms for 10.

Sanity Questioned.

A sanity hearing was ordered for still pretty Frances Farmer, stage and screen actress, who was photographed in awkward, disheveled poses while being bodily carried to court and thence to jail. On probation for a drunken driving case, Miss Farmer resisted arrest on complaint of a movie studio hairdresser that she knocked the woman down, was sentenced to six months of jail as a probation violator.

In Seattle Miss Farmer's mother said, "A layman can't understand an emotional, high-strung person like Frances."

Soldiers.

Margaret Conrardy spent a year and a half with American soldiers as a USO hostess at Anchorage, Alaska. In that time she learned that a soldier's mind turns first, to food; second, to feminine companionship.

He's afraid of only two things: That he is forgotten at home; or that his girl will fall in love with someone else.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — Congressmen and other government officials interested in the plight of small business are studying results of a survey which may be the key to what has happened and is happening to the nation's 36,000 automobile dealers.

Here is an industry which, it appears on the surface, the war virtually annihilated. With practically no cars to sell; parts, tires, gasoline and oil rationed; and mechanics drafted or lured away by higher wages in war industries, it was almost inconceivable that the auto dealer and garage man could stay in business.

Yet the survey of Joseph W. Frazer, an auto company president, indicates such isn't the case at all. Frazer's detailed questionnaire was sent to more than 2,000 dealers. If it's a fair sampling, more than 72 per cent of the dealers will still be in business at the end of the duration, and 20 per cent of the prospective or actual dealer casualties expect to reopen as soon as the war is over.

THIS 20 per cent doubted that it could survive but only 8 per cent declared definitely that they were out of business now or would be before hostilities cease. That's a good deal different from the predictions of a year ago that more than half the automobile dealers would be bankrupt before the end of 1942.

The greatest mortality rate is in the east where gas rationing has been in operation for months, but it is only 6 per cent greater than the rest of the nation.

Frazer thinks car dealers have shown unusual ingenuity. Answers to his questionnaires show that the automobile men are selling everything from beer to blackout supplies in order to pay rentals, keep their staffs intact, and themselves off the bread line. There are of course, some new car sales. There are some tire and gas and oil sales. And depleted repair shop staffs have all the business they can handle. Then, too, there is the second hand car business. In the heavily populated states of New York, Pennsylvania, Michigan and California, this is quite a factor.

MANY dealers have tried a few things that weren't in the books. Many have gone into war production and are handling sub-sub-contracts. One big dealer is cleaning up on a tire-theft alarm device. Another is selling air-raid sirens. Several put in harness equipment, mainly as a joke, and are finding it a profitable sideline. In agricultural districts, many are servicing their old customers with dairy and poultry feeds.

A surprising number have converted their showrooms into restaurants and night clubs—especially in war production and military training areas.

One other interesting fact that Frazer discovered is that hundreds of auto dealers are planning to combine airplane sales with their car business as soon as it's all over.

Daily Bible Thought

We must study to show ourselves approved of God.—II Timothy 2:15.

Quotes

Donald M. Nelson, WPB chairman: "If we hope to win a final victory in 1944, we must finish our war preparations this year, even if it inconveniences everyone in the country—and it probably will."

Herbert Hoover: For some time to come the war is obviously a war of aggressive attrition. That attrition is just as vital on the home front as on the military front. And our powers of attrition and combat are increasing more rapidly than those of the Axis.

Abroad

Leningrad Relief.

For a week, Moscow was mum about Leningrad, voluble about the southern front, where the strategic city of Millerovo was recaptured and the distance to Rostov steadily shortened; about the south central front, where new drives were aimed at Kharkov and Voronezh; about Stalingrad, where an encircling movement had whittled a German suicide garrison from 300,000 to an estimated 50,000.

When Moscow finally decided to break the news, it was worth waiting for. It told how a tremendous Russian battering ram, reminiscent of World war I days, smashed through nine miles of German defenses to lift the Leningrad siege, freeing a million persons who had suffered shellfire, privation and short rations since August, 1941.

Chasing Rommel.

The week's developments in North Africa pushed Rommel's military fortunes to the lowest point of his career. As Montgomery continued the cat-and-mouse game he has played for more than 1,000 miles across Africa's desert, military men watched the situation move toward a smashing climax.

Rommel headed for Tripoli, but effective operations of the Allied bomber command long ago left that port untenable and there appeared little prospect that Rommel would even attempt a stand. Thus, his obvious move was to take his estimated 100,000 men to a safe juncture with German and Italian forces already entrenched in Tunisia.

Political Brew.

Bad weather during the week stalled American military operations in North Africa, but it couldn't bog down the French politicians.

Into the complicated scene was projected a former Vichy collaborationist, Marcel Peyrouton, as new governor-general of Algeria. Whether it would satisfy De Gaullists awaited an imminent meeting between Gens. Giraud and DeGaulle.

To balance Peyrouton, however, was the appointment by Gen. Giraud of Maj. Gen. Jurion, no politician but a thorough soldier, as Tunisia's acting governor-general. Of Jurion's loyalty there appeared no doubt; he broke through German lines immediately upon the arrival of Allied troops in Tunisia, fought his way to Giraud's camp, then led French troops against the Axis.

Berlin Bumped.

From an undisclosed number of airfields in Britain this week went heavy Lancaster and Stirling bombers, most of them carrying in their racks the huge two or four-ton "block-buster" bombs developed by the Allies during the year.

They plowed through murky weather straight for Berlin, and there, finding only light anti-aircraft and fighter opposition, unloaded their bombs for the 54th RAF raid—and by far the most devastating one—on the capital. James MacDonald, who rode one of the ships as a representative of American newsmen, reported that the raid had transformed Berlin into a "particularly hot corner of hell on earth."

The next night the RAF tried it again, this time found the defenses heavier, counted 22 bombers lost against only one the first night. But since each raid involved considerable numbers of bombers, losses were regarded as moderate. The Luftwaffe retaliated with an immediate raid on London; British sources called it a "puny" one, but a school house near London was demolished and many children killed.

Trick.

A pilot of the Central African Fighting French army spotted 140 Italian soldiers evacuating Fort Murzuch, 2,500 miles southeast of Tripoli. He exhausted his ammunition machine-gunning them, then dropped a note threatening to open fire with his cannon unless they surrendered. They did. What they didn't know: The pilot's airplane had no cannon.

ıe house where Ruby Mallory l with her prodigious coterie insfolk, proteges, colleagues, itors, and mere dependents, a nuddle-aged four-story nstone house in the West nties, around the corner and way down the block from ral park. Hobey, in all his s of intimate familiarity with 's house, always envisioned s towering up indefinitely, after floor, skyscraper-hotel on. There was no other menvay of fitting everybody in. e first day he ever went , for example, he met thirty le. About half of them proved e daytime visitors, like himthe other half were inmates, temporary, some eternal. included Ruby's husband—er Henry, everybody called Ruby's mother, known as ma; and some thirteen asd others. It took Hobey sevvisits to get the thirteen s figured out, and by that there had been changes and acements in their ranks, and were not the same thirteen ght through, and it was sevn now anyhow.

at was the way it always was uby's, in those years. There a floating population that d any census.

ople who stayed for any h of time were called the ily; and Hobey finally learned ell them from the fly-by-s. There was, for instance, ce of Ruby's, a Mrs. O'Hara e first name was Clara if you d aright, which seemed un-; two children, Sis and Brud, n you took to be Mrs. Clara a's children, but who turned o be the offspring of a dance on the road; Ruby's halfer, Kip, who had been a pronal bicycle rider until he re-; several indigent actors and evillians; an unexplained le-aged Cuban referred to as , who slept in a chair all the and a girl from Ruby's chowho was married to a soldier going to have a baby in Deer.

d of course Momma—and of e Mister Henry. There was dy at all like either of them. ma was a Mrs. Kroopf, or ss. or something with a K. idn't matter what, since it never used. She had been ied half a dozen times. "The ime was when she was sixty-' Ruby said enthusiastically, n't it. Momma?" "What's '" Momma said. She was a deaf.

ster Henry was Henry R. S. McV. Cunningham, all told. He was proud of his long name, and of the fact that he was English, and he carried calling cards to give to anybody who would take them, and he still spoke with a London accent, after thirty New York years. He had been an actor in his time. He had been stranded here, and that was how it had all come about. He still seemed transient in America, and puzzled.

Details like these were among Hobey's gradual discoveries. On that late-August day in 1918 when he went to Ruby's house for the first time, he remained only long enough for introductions all around, and for a big quick lunch in the loud midst of everybody—then he was carried off by Ruby to the ball game. He didn't get back to the house again that day, because he was due at the ship at Brooklyn at five, and even as it was they had to leave the Polo Grounds in the sixth inning.

When he got back the next time, and called her up from the first telephone booth he came to off the gangplank, she said, "You're late. You said three weeks, and it'll be four tomorrow."

She knew exactly, which seemed wonderful. "You come straight up here!" she was saying excitedly. "Where are you, Brooklyn? Well, have you got shore leave? Well, then, for heaven's sake don't stand there telephoning! Get thee to a subway, as Shakespeare said . . ."

It was late September now. He stayed for dinner and the evening, till about eleven; then Ruby went to work and took him with her. The cabaret, the show and everything, was just what it had been four weeks ago. The new adventure was the life of Ruby's house. You would have thought he lived there too, the way they treated him—the way they made the whole thing seem like a homecoming.

In October, when he got back from his fourth—and next-to-last—round trip, it was the same thing, only more so. He practically did live there then, for six days. That was the week they put the ship in drydocks for repairs, and everybody had a lot of liberty. He was at Ruby's every day, for meals, or just to see her, or just for the sake of being there. He belonged there now. These were his people, and this was his place.

There was the little business talk she had with him, during that same October week. It wasn't unexpected, but Ruby brought it up as though it were, for her own reasons. She began by sounding merely casual and friendly, asking him what he thought he was going to do when the war was over—had he any idea at all?

"I haven't thought about it, much."

"Well, think about it," Ruby said.

He smiled. "Right now?"

"Right now. Out loud. You'll probably go back home to Maine and live, won't you? Or won't you?"

He looked at her in surprise, but Ruby was looking as if she meant it.

"Not me."

"Why not?"

"Well, because," he said, "I don't want to, that's all. I got away, why would I go back?"

"I see," said Ruby. "That seems to be settled, all right. And you don't want to stay on in the navy . . . Or do you? Maybe you do."

"I might," he said doubtfully. "But I don't know. It would be different, after, I guess. I don't know if I'd like it, to stay in for good."

"Why?" he added, with eagerness, because she was certainly driving at something.

Ruby took her own time. "Maybe you would, though," she said. "You might. You're an old salt from 'way back, don't forget. Maybe you wouldn't be happy away from the sea, or living in a city. Maybe you couldn't breathe. Some people can't."

"I like it in a city, though. So far."

"'So far' is right. Wait'll you get a snootful of it, maybe you'll feel different. No, I mean it," Ruby said. "Maybe the navy's the life for you. Anyhow, it's one thing you ought to think over good and hard."

"All right, I will," he promised absently, still watching her.

For a minute he thought that that was all she was going to say, till another time. He waited, though, in case it wasn't—and it wasn't. "You ought to be thinking the whole business over," she said, "and making up your mind. One of these days you're going to have to decide, and so are a million other men, and you might as well get the jump on them, if you can, because it's going to be tough. Good jobs aren't going to be growing on trees when this shooting match is over with—you know that, don't you? It isn't as if you could pick and chose, because nobody's going to be able to."

"I know."

"And especially not a kid like you," Ruby said speculatively. "It isn't even as if you'd learned a trade, or anything. What you really ought to do is go to school."

"It's too late for that, I guess," he said, with suitable regret.

"Yes, I suppose it is. Except on the side."

They both looked thoughtful.

"And then there's Boston," Ruby said abruptly. "If you're going to be high and dry in a city, would you like it to be Boston, maybe?"

If she meant because of Rosalie, she didn't say so; and Hobey answered the question as though it were only about work. "Not specially," he said; and added with a slight wry smile, "I didn't do so good in Boston."

"I know, but that's no reason," Ruby admonished him. "No reason at all. They threw stink bombs at me once in Chicago, but I'm back like a bird every year. If you want to go to Boston and work, you go to Boston and work—and give 'em hell. Probably be the best thing for you."

"Maybe it would."

They exchanged a solemn glance; then Ruby's eyes began to twinkle, and she laughed, and Hobey laughed. This was more like it.

"So you want to go to Boston, do you?" Ruby said. "You don't want to stay right here and work for me?"

"Sure if you want me to."

"Well, then, why didn't you say so?"

"How could I, till you said something?"

Ruby was still laughing, with a kind of sheepish glee. "Me!" she said. "I was putting on an act, and it was terrible. I was trying to lean over backwards, so's not to influence you—but, pshaw, I was never built for contortions like that. I lean my way, or no way. I couldn't even kid you, could I? You knew all the time."

"I wasn't sure—"

"Sure you were sure. You and I understand each other—always did and always will."

"The only thing is," Hobey said, "I don't see what I could do, in your business." This troubled him. He said, "I wouldn't want you should just make—up a job so I could have it."

"Why not?" Ruby said tranquilly.

"Well, because. You've got enough people."

"By and large," said Ruby, "I've got enough people to populate the State of Texas, till it teems. But have I got anybody to do a million and one little things that aren't getting done? I have not. That's me, and that's my cross in life—and that's where you come in."

She nodded briskly at him, while he looked relievedly back. "It's those little odds and ends of things I want you to do for me," she said. "At least, for a starter. And when I say there's a million and one of 'em, that's at a conservative estimate. You'll be busy enough, if that's what's worrying you. You'll be lucky if you ever get to take the weight off your feet. So don't give that part of it another thought."

"Okay, then," he said happily. "I won't."

"I've got all kinds of plans for you. You wait and see."

* * *

She patted his hand, giving it the single little slap with hers that always deprecatingly preceded her expressions of affection. "Well, and why not?" she demanded gruffly. "You're like my own, you know. You're the nearest thing to a son I've ever had. It may not be the best thing for you, working for me—but maybe you could do worse. At least I can keep an eye on you, till you grow up and get some sense. So now the only question is, how do you feel about it?"

"I guess you know how I feel about it."

"Yes, God love you," Ruby said, more gruffly still. "I guess I do."

MANSFIELD BUSINESS IN REVIEW

Permanent Location Established For Hostess China Company

Brown - Falk Partnership Continues With Fine Glass-Chinaware.

The beginning of the potter's art is forever lost in antiquity.

Long before the dawn of history the art of forming and decorating pottery had spread to every corner of the earth. Races, even whole civilizations, have flourished and vanished, leaving to us today the only record of their very existence.

Yet such was the artistry of those ancient potters that modern archeologists can interpret from their relics many facts about the habits of the makers.

Edward H. Brown, of the Hostess China company, 4 South Park street, is a real student of the potter's art . . . its history, as well as its place in the modern plan of living. He has been intensely interested in beautiful dinnerware, the plants that make it and the variety of processes used in its manufacture for a period of more than 12 years. During this time he has taken an active part in the merchandising of china and glassware from both the wholesale and retail angles.

Mr. Brown explains that in medieval China pottery making reached its highest point with the invention of porcelain. From China the art of making porcelain spread to Europe and England and hence to America.

New methods of forming and decorating were invented. These new methods did not improve the beauty but they greatly reduced the costs.

"Today," Mr. Brown continues, "there is not an American household that cannot afford a table service as dainty and beautiful as those which formerly were the exclusive right of emperors."

And it is just such table service as this that Mr. Brown has stocked in abundant variety at the Hostess China shop, which he owns in partnership with Dick A. Falk, now stationed at Valparaiso, Ind., with the medical corps.

Falk and Brown formed a partnership two years ago at Orchard Park, Lexington, where they built up a large business in china and glassware, not only supplying a large Richland county and transient trade, but shipping to points all over the country.

They purchased from 55 different companies, buying connections which they still maintain.

A fire at Orchard Park on last Oct. 25 destroyed the large display room and contents.

On Nov. 16 the Hostess China company opened under the same management in its present location in the Southern hotel building which, Brown declares, will be their permanent business home.

Hostess China carries internationally advertised semi-porcelain and vitreous wares of domestic manufacture and imported lines in porcelain body in 30 open stock patterns. At least 20 additional patterns are available and new ware is arriving continually at the showroom.

On the shelves of the Hostess China shop are wares from the ovens of such well known potteries as Pope-Gosser, Sebring, Cannonsburg, Universal and W. S. George. The latter company, located at East Palestine, Ohio, is one of the largest china factories in the world.

One of the newer and more beautiful lines carried by Hostess China is the Franciscan tableware about which both Mr. and Mrs. Brown are quite enthusiastic.

Franciscan ware is made from a revolutionary material called "Malinite" which is considered to be the most important technical achievement in the pottery industry in the past century.

Instead of wares being made from clay, the basic material of the Malinite body is talc rock, the same material from which "talcum powder" is produced. Combined with the talc is an amorphous flux which in the heat of the kiln, so binds together the molecules of talc that an extremely tough and durable body is formed, highly resistant to thermal shock and free from internal flaws.

The most important feature of Malinite, Mr. Brown states, is the fact that glazes become so fused with body that they cannot craze. Another glaze feature lies in the brilliant palette of colors and inimitable matte textures that can be produced.

The Hostess China company stocks hand wrought crystal from the famous house of Heisey and three open stock styles of glassware by Cambridge.

These rock crystal hand cut patterns include the "Wildflower," a delicate design acid etched on the glass; the new and beautiful "Caprice," patterned distinctively in circling ripples that achieve an entirely new modern beauty, and "Chantilly," as intricately lovely as the lace it was named for.

More than a hundred useful and beautiful items in each of these open stock patterns are available.

Hostess China carries Grindley and Chick art pottery lines which include novelties of all kinds and Universal ovenware such as casseroles, pitchers, mixing bowls, jugs and salt and pepper shakes of every conceivable kind.

Decorative pottery by "Roseville" is a featured line at Hostess China where the newest pattern, the "Waterlily," released Dec. 28, is now available.

Mr. Brown selects all his stock personally. He makes frequent trips to the pottery markets himself, thus making possible and speeding up deliveries at a time when the supply of merchandise is limited and slow.

The shop opens at 10 a. m. and closes at 8 p. m. with one exception. It is closed from sundown on Friday until sundown on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown and Mr. Falk appreciate the cooperation of their customers during their change in location and hope to be of greater service now that they are operating regularly again.

They are most hospitable at Hostess China and invite all who are interested in fine china and glass to browse the shop at any time whether interested in purchasing or not.

The accompanying photo shows a portion of the varied display of china, glassware and decorative art pottery in the showroom of the Hostess China company, 4 South Park street.

WOMEN'S CLUB SCENE OF JOINT LUNCHEON

Cosmopolitan and Conversational Clubs Meet Friday to Hear Talk on "Antiques," By Mrs. H. L. Princehorn.

MEMBERS of the Cosmopolitan and Conversational clubs met Friday at the Women's Club for a dessert-luncheon, with Mrs. C. O. Russell and Mrs. T. W. Endriss as hostesses. Guests at the affair were Mrs. Roy Beck, Mrs. K. W. Mabee, Mrs. George Anderson, Mrs. L. D. Van VenScoten and Mrs. H. L. Princehorn.

The luncheon was served at attractively decorated tables which were centered with displays of antiques owned by members of the two clubs.

Mrs. Princehorn was the principal speaker talking on the subject, "The Lure of Antiques." The speaker suggested hobbies as a cure for everything, and described antiques as a hobby.

"One can be a mere collector of authenticated antiques, or a "junk-snooper," one who finds articles of value among junk and buys them cheaply. The latter collector is born, not made," Mrs. Princehorn told her audience.

The crafts of yesterday produced the antiques of today, she said, as she traced the histories of some crafts and briefly reviewed other items of interest to the collector.

Mrs. Princehorn showed numerous items in her collection of antiques, and told interesting stories in regards to them.

The next meeting of the Conversational club is scheduled for Feb. 10, at the Women's Club, with Mrs. Fannie Carrier as hostess. Mrs. Eugene Smart will discuss "Current Plays" at this session. Cosmopolitan club members will meet Feb. 12 at the home of Mrs. Frank Wendt, Andover road, with Mrs. George Hall as associate hostess. The program will be a book review by Mrs. F. J. Schuster.

THEATERS

Sea Saga.

A stirring saga of the sea in the days when freebooters plied the waves is unfolded in the Ohio attraction, "The Black Swan," starring Tyrone Power as a fearless captain who set out to free the water lanes of early pirates. Based on Rafael Sabastini's swashbuckling tale by the same name the picture presents an array of stellar actors including Laird Cregar, Thomas Mitchell, George Sanders and Anthony Quinn while Maureen O'Hara supplies the romantic note. Cregar has the role of the greatest pirate of them all who becomes governor of Jamaica.

Colorful Drama.

From the upper crust of London society to a beachcomber's existence on a South Sea island is the transition effected by George Sanders in his role of a stockbroker turned artist in Somerset Maugham's "The Moon and Sixpence," showing at the Madison. As the painter Sanders defies conventions, jibes at women and shocks his neighbors. Doris Dudley and a newcomer, Elena Verdugo, appear as the women in the artist's life. Miss Verdugo as the native girl who captures his fancy. Herbert Marshall and Eric Blore are also in the cast. "Wrecking Crew," with Chester Morris and Richard Arlen is the co-feature.

Air Thriller.

"Thunder Birds," the Ritz attraction opening Sunday, shows how flying cadets win their wings at Arizona's famed Thunder Bird and Falcon fields. Both fields were used as location spots when the picture was filmed and real American, British and Chinese cadets furnished some actual manuevers. Preston Foster and John Sutton head the cast. Foster has the role of a flying instructor attempting to sprout wings on an English cadet. Gene Tierney is the girl both men have set their hearts upon. Jack Holt and Dame May Whitty are in the picture. "Ridin' Down the Canyon," is the second film. Roy Rogers is starred.

Lugosi Shocker.

The story of a maniacal professor whose shady operations take him from campus to slums is depicted in "Bowery at Midnight." Bela Lugosi's new shocker opening Sunday at the Park. The star has a Jenkyll-Hyde role and he is assisted by Lew Kelly, Vince Barnett, and J. Farrell MacDonald. "Johnny Doughboy," with Jane Withers is the second production.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

INCREASE YOUR CHANCES

STAKING your all on one single possibility is sound bridge when nothing else will avail. But before you do it, look around a moment and see if there isn't some way to give yourself an extra chance. You will be surprised how many times you can find some alternative which increases the odds in your favor or decreases those against you.

(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
2 ♥	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
3 ♥	Pass	4 ♥	Pass

South felt sure that almost every other North-South pair in the duplicate would be in a contract of 7 Hearts or 7 No Trumps, as soon as he saw that dummy after West led the club Q. He had to have some way to beat them, if they failed to make their contracts, as he was unalterably defeated if they succeeded in them. He also wanted to beat any others who stopped at small slam.

A little study showed that they would probably try to drop the missing four spades in two rounds, or else find the J a singleton. Either of those would furnish entry to dummy. Consequently his assignment was to locate a way to have a better chance for such an entry. He found it.

Winning the club Q with the K, he cashed the heart A, next the spade A, and then led the heart 9. If West put up the J, as he did, the contract was safe, as the 10 was then an entry to use the spades for minor suit discards. If West had ducked—an unthinkable play—the 10 would have been an immediate entry for two spades as a means of discarding losers, and so all the tricks would have been taken.

If West had played low, and the 10 went on, then East killed it with the J, it would have been because the four cards were evenly divided. In that event, the heart 2 to the 5 would have furnished the necessary entry to dummy. In a nutshell, South had multiplied his chances playing as he did, and using a method which would have been correct also in a 6-Hearts contract at rubber bridge.

Your Week-end Lesson.

When you are contemplating a lead-throwing end-play, what is the difference between the preparation necessary if you are in a No Trump contract and that required if you are in a suit contract?

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

For fear that Mary might follow me out, I did not go straight to the elevator, but stepped across the hall and waited near the door marked "Exit," watching her door until it opened the length of the chain and my niece's lovely face peered through. She put her finger on her lips as I came to the exit door.

"Noel is in the bathroom shaving," she said, "and I thought you might be lingering around. Are there any loose ends to be picked up?"

"None," I said, "except that you're to remember the story I told, and not vary from it in any detail. I'm going up now to refresh the memory of your husband's family, that Stephen telephoned for me, not you. And one thing more—don't be nervous at the theater or anywhere else tonight. There'll be somebody keeping an eye on Stephen Redfield, and he will be quietly prevented from showing up at the theater, if he decides to see for himself how Hayes is getting along with the part."

Mary Relieved.

"That's like a reprieve from the scaffold," Mary murmured. "You know I don't mind for myself," she added quickly. "I don't care tuppence what act Steve wants to stage, but I don't want Noel to have to stand any more."

"Exactly," I told her. "And you needn't worry; he won't have to stand any more. But remember, Steve didn't telephone you. He came over here, much to your surprise and mine, in search of me. Don't forget!"

"Do you think it's likely?" she reproached me.

"How is Noel reacting?" I asked.

"Like a perfect lamb, thanks to you and your marvelous tarradiddle."

"Then good-bye," I whispered, and quickly left to go to the top floor luxurious apartment of the Philip Veritzens, which Dicky irreverently terms the "royal suite."

I found Philip Vertizen in his library, after Marie had told me that Madame Veritzen and Mademoiselle Olina had not yet returned, and he welcomed me impressively.

"You look disturbed," he said, eyeing me keenly. "Has anything fresh happened?"

"Yes," I said, "and I must tell you about it."

I quickly related the startling events of the last few minutes, beginning with Redfield's telephone to Mary, and on through his threatening of Mary and the scene between Noel and Redfield, winding up with the way I made Noel believe that Steve's telephone call had been to me instead of Mary.

"The reason I came to you now," I said, "was to make sure you should understand that the telephone call from Steve was to me, not to Mary. I am anxious over what Noel might do if he should learn that Mary and I had deceived him."

"I understand your point perfectly," he said, "and you may be sure Noel will learn nothing from me."

He leaned forward, and spoke with affectionate emphasis.

"I understand something else too, and that is the infinite debt I owe you for your care of Noel and Mary. It is an intolerable situation in which they are involved because of Redfield, and Noel's almost insane jealous anger, his heritage from my family, makes it distinctly dangerous."

Will Dismiss Redfield.

The intonation in his voice made me long instinctively to leave the print of my palm on his cheek. It held smugness, conscious or unconscious, the cause of which I knew, for it stemmed from his ridiculous pride in his own "bar sinister" royal ancestry, which he feels makes him something akin to his regal wife.

The next instant his voice changed to sternness.

"This makes me determined on one thing," he said. "Redfield must not appear on the stage with Mary again. I shall give him his dismissal today—no, tomorrow. You think he is safe until then?"

Ogborn. Officers elected for the coming year were Mrs. M. Stretch, treasurer, Mrs. E. Boner, chairman, and Mrs. Harry Fife, reporter. HOROSCOPE

For Sunday, Jan. 24.

Sunday's horoscope is not a very important one, as it will be difficult to make headway or achieve any sort of success and satisfaction against stubborn obstacles, delays and postponements.

Those whose birthday it is may be called upon to vanquish stern opposition, stubborn obstacles, frustrations and impediments, which will serve to defeat the best efforts and sound intentions.

A child born on this day should receive a sound education and philosophy to fit it for attacking and vanquishing many impediments and frustrations.

For Monday, Jan. 25.

Monday's astrological forecast is for a rather unimportant and uneventful day, with things moving along in routine grooves. Probably the emphasis may be placed on friendly social or domestic visits rather than business occupations.

Those whose birthday it is may not look for an eventful year, but may find pleasure and good fellowship more interesting than business. Some danger coverns papers, writings, contracts.

A child born on this day may concentrate on enjoyment, good times and personal popularity.

ART STUDY CLUB HEARS MRS. ARTHUR KELL

Mrs. K. E. Buhr, Mrs. Fred Dippman and Miss Lillian Dickson Preside as Hostesses, Friday, at Buhr Home.

"AMERICAN WOMEN ARTISTS" was the subject of the interesting talk Mrs. Arthur Kell presented to 30 members of the Art Study club Friday at the home of Mrs. K. E. Buhr, Glenbeck Lane.

The lives and workers of three living American artists were described in detail by the speaker, beginning with Georgia O'Keefe, who is considered one of the best known women painters of the present day. Mrs. Kell said that Miss O'Keefe's work is very modern, and one of her best paintings was sold for $10,000.

She described Doris Lee as showing great promise for the future, and Lauren Ford, who paints magazine pictures of a religious nature, as "bringing home very closely the beauty of Christ's life and what it teaches us in a new and gracious charm."

Copies of pictures by the three artists were displayed by the speaker, many of which have appeared in recent issues of nationally known magazines.

Tea was served at the close of the meeting, with Mrs. Marion Brinkerhoff and Mrs. Charles Farry, pouring.

Miss Lillian Dickson and Mrs. Fred Dippman were associate hostesses for the meeting.

The next meeting, Feb. 5, will be at the Women's club, with Mrs. Andrew Theiss, Mrs. H. E. Homberger and Mrs. George Cairns as hostesses. Mrs. Kenneth Buhr will speak on "Our Flag in Art."

Horseshoes of Kentucky Derby winners for the past 13 years have been contributed to scrap.

Current events were read by members in reply to the roll call. Mrs. James Trine was leader of the group. She gave a book review and told of her personal travels in a report on New Orleans. The meeting in two weeks, will be in the form of a one o'clock luncheon at the home of Mrs. George Garrison, on Western avenue.

Madison Ties for Loop Lead

Plymouth, Lexington Score Upset Victories.

MADISON high school Rams romped over Union 34-18 last night to return to a tie with Lucas for the Richland county high school basketball league leadership, but upsets were scored in the other two games on the league card as Lexington smothered Butler 26-16, and Plymouth edged to a 27-25 victory at Perrysville.

Playing without Captain Willie Wynn, who was ill with the flu, Madison came up with two competent subs in Shriver and Eckles, who between them, evened the Union count of 18 points, Eckels hitting for 12 and Shriver for six.

It was Delbert "Doc" Poston's final game for Madison, and both Eckles and Shriver will see plenty of action as replacements for the tall Ram center.

Madison took a 10-6 lead in the first period, boosted it to 19-14 at the half, and 24-16 at the third quarter. Union was held to two points in each of the last two stanzas.

Lexington, recent winner over Lucas in a non-league game, turned the tables on a Butler aggregation which, until a week ago, led the county loop with four straight wins before losing to Madison. Butler had defeated Lexington in a non-loop tilt early in the season.

The Minute Men left no question of their superiority over the Bulldogs in this second meeting at Lexington, jumping away to a 7-3 lead in the opening period, and boosting it to 13-9 at the half and 20-14 at the third quarter.

Clever led the assault with 10 points, while D. Forbes got eight for Butler.

The Pilgrims and Blue Jays had a real battle at Bellville, tied up at 5-5 in the first quarter. Plymouth took a 16-11 lead at the half, but Bellville bounced back with a 21-20 edge at the third quarter.

The two teams battled point for point through the final session, until a free point by Plymouth tied it up at 25-25. In the last minute of play, Ross scored the winning two-pointer with an under-basket shot.

Good crowds saw all the county league games again last night, indicating once more that gas rationing has proven a boon for small town sports.

MASSILLON WANTS ATHLETES DEFERRED

MASSILLON —(AP)— Deferments for two Massillon high school athletes who are scheduled to be inducted today are being sought by L. J. Smith, superintendent of schools.

Superintendent Smith said he is seeking the deferments on the grounds the first school semester ended yesterday. His interpretation of the selective service ruling is that senior boys who are in their second semester are to be deferred until they complete the school year.

The two athletes for whom Smith said he would seek deferments are Joe Harrison, a varsity basketball player, and Bob Graber, a football player. They are scheduled to leave here today with a group of draftees for the Akron induction center.

Battle Four Extra Periods

Akron Outlasts Ohio U. In Bucketball Marathon.

(By Associated Press)

When it comes to basketball marathons, Akron's Zippers have what it takes to fasten 'em up.

The Zippers outlasted Ohio university's Bobcats through four five-minute overtime periods at Athens last night to win, 72 to 70, on a fielder by Substitute Forward Whitey Wahl in the final 40 seconds. Ohio U. officials said the extra periods set a record there.

The count was knotted at 51-all on a free throw by Kenny Walters, Bobcat forward, at the end of the regulation game and the teams deadlocked in the first three extra frames at 59-59, 66-66 and 68-68.

In another overtime contest, Case edged Western Reserve, 54 to 52, at Cleveland.

Capital university of Columbus racked up its sixth Ohio conference victory without loss at the expense of the Eagles at Ashland. Cap won, 55 to 44, but had to come from behind in the second half to do it.

In another conference fray, Baldwin-Wallace knocked off Findlay, 45 to 40, and Wooster defeated Mt. Union, 54 to 47, at Alliance.

Bowling Green's Falcons got back into stride with a 51-39 victory over Kent State at Kent.

Fenn of Cleveland journeyed to Gambier to receive a battering, Kenyon's Lords winning 52 to 46. Little Rio Grande college suffered another setback at Morehead, Ky., Morehead triumphing 46 to 32.

Servicemen at Chanute field, Illinois, believe in being prepared for anything at all times. These basketball sharpshooters of the Army Air Forces Technical Training Command try playing the game with gas masks on.

Sport Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Looking farther ahead than a good many folks, Elmer Ripley, Georgetown basketball coach, sees a comeback in store for pro basketball under wartime conditions. . . . His idea is that the pros can cash in on the current popularity of the college game and the fact that basketball courts can be put in places where gas-rationed fans can reach them.

There's no doubt about what kind of basketball the fans like. You can see for yourself in Madison Square Garden, where we once sat through a pro game yawning in unison with about 200 other spectators. . . . But pro basketball has a long way to come back. It still survives in the American and National leagues and a few "independent" and traveling teams, but even in its best days it never was a big-time or a big-money sport. . . . Still, the best basketball we ever saw was played by a couple of fast A. A. U. teams that had the same kind of post-graduate material the pros could pick.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR.

J. P. Wynne, Lock Haven (Pa.) Express: "The two Philadelphia baseball clubs lead the major leagues. The A's have 19 men in the armed forces, the Phils 17. It appears the Quaker City boys will have done their best in the world serious."

SHAUGHNESSY STUDIES PITT COACHING POST

WASHINGTON —(ANS)— Clark Shaughnessy, football coach at the University of Maryland, said today that he would take over the reins as head grid mentor at the University of Pittsburgh if "Pitt makes an offer so attractive I cannot refuse."

Commenting on reports that he would replace Charley Bowser as Pittsburgh's football coach, Shaughnessy admitted that he had been "sounded out" on the subject of coaching the Panthers. He said that he might make a trip to Pittsburgh within the next few days to discuss the subject with Pitt athletic officials.

Mansfield Cagers Even Record for Season

Hahn and Lamoreux Pace Mates To Victory; Baker Fouls Out

WITH a 38-36 victory over Norwalk filed away in the record book, Mansfield high school's Tygers go into their bucketball battle with Youngstown Chaney at Senior high gym tonight all even with the board once more at five victories and five defeats for the season.

It was a wild-scoring game the Tygers snatched at Norwalk last night, enlivened by the long shots of Ewell and Ziemke who each tallied 13 points for the losers.

Mansfield had 63 shots, all in the vicinity of the foul circle, and came up with a 30 per cent shooting average which kept the Tygers in the lead most of the game.

Tygers gained a 9-8 edge in the first period, and boosted it to 19-17 at the half. Bob Baker, leading Mansfield scorer for the season, was given a rest in the second period when three fouls chalked against him, but was sent back in in the third quarter, and lasted just long enough for one play, when the fourth foul sent him to the showers.

The Mansfield teamwork fell apart for a time after Baker's departure, and Norwalk came back to take a three-point lead, but the Tygers, with Dean Hahn and Andy Lamoreux leading the attack, recovered the lead at 33-28 before the third period ended.

Mansfield's longest lead in the game was six points, early in the final quarter, and then Ewell and Ziemke went to work to cut down the margin to two points, but couldn't quite tie it up before the final gun.

* * *

Hahn and Lamoreux each tallied 12 points to pace the Tyger scoring.

A preliminary game is booked at 7 o'clock tonight, with the Chaney tilt carded at 8:15.

Simpson Cops Series Tilt

Defeats Appleseed In Close Defensive Game.

John Simpson junior high cagers yesterday won their fifth straight game over Johnny Appleseed, starting the third winter series still undefeated in the city championship rivalry.

But the Bulldogs had no walkaway in the 24-15 fracas at Simpson gym, which saw both teams putting up a nearly airtight defense which allowed few follow shots.

First quarter saw them deadlocked at 1-1 and two minut

MIXED PRICES MARK TRADING IN MART LIST

Iron Ore Consumption Takes 700,000 Ton Jump In Steel Mills.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Moderately mixed price tendencies continued in today's early stock market proceedings.

Up a shade at a fairly active opening were U. S. Rubber, Republic Steel, General Electric and Reynolds Tobacco "B." Unchanged to off fractions were Bethlehem, and United Aircraft.

Boardrooms saw a constructive item for the steels in the summary of the Lake Superior Iron Ore association placing consumption of ore by steel mills in December at 7,759,365 tons, or about 700 tons more than the like 1941 month. For all of 1942 the figure was 86,225,460 gross tons, a new record.

MAP PROGRAM

Girl Scout Council to Hear Outline of Activities.

Plans and objectives for the year will be mapped by the Mansfield Girl Scout council at a meeting in the executive headquarters Thursday at 9:30 a. m.

Mrs. John W. Graham, Girl Scout commissioner, will preside and new members will be introduced. Mrs. George Kirtley, Mrs. Otis Cummins and Mrs. James Boyd compose the incoming group.

Arrangements for Scout participation in the Victory Book campaign will be made and plans for victory gardens by the troops will be discussed. Scouts will be urged to collect books from their own homes, relatives and friends since a house to house canvass is not a part of the campaign program this year.

Troop activities include a dance tonight at the Y. W. C. A. by troop 9 of Johnny Appleseed school.

SOVIETS POUND CLOSE TO KURSK

Armies Closing In on Rostov And Kharkov to Force General Nazi Retreat.

tov and possession of the airfield from which Nazi transport planes have flown supplies and reinforcements to the armies entrapped in the Stalingrad area.

Other Soviet columns drove on Rostov through the Don basin and from Kamensk, 85 miles north on the Rostov-Voronezh rail line.

Scores of towns and villages fell before the Red army offensives on the southern front. The Germans stiffened their resistance at some points and launched counter-attacks but failed to check the Russian onrush.

One village on the southern front changed hands three times in Friday's fighting and finally was captured and held by a Russian tank assault on the enemy's flank.

Enemy losses in casualties and equipment mounted. The midnight communique announced capture of a German airfield and 15 planes on the Voronezh front.

On another sector 700 Axis troops were killed and 1,800 prisoners taken in a brief battle.

Southwest of Velikie Luki, where Soviet armies are driving toward the Latvian border, nine villages were recaptured.

Seventeen Axis tanks were put out of action on an unidentified sector where Russian units recaptured two fortified towns and killed several hundred enemy troops.

The German high command poured fresh troops into the southwestern front from Kharkov to the Central Caucasus in an effort to stem the Soviet advance. But military observers pointed out that the Russians were attacking at so many different points that it was difficult for the German command to know how to distribute reinforcements.

Wherever the Red army encounters stiff resistance it bypasses the enemy stronghold and attempts an encircling maneuver. These tactics have reduced the enemy garrisons at Millerovo and other points where the Germans maintained strong garrisons.

Soviet columns thrusting into the Ukraine in the offensive against Kharkov were reported within seven miles of Voroshilovgrad, mining and manufacturing center, 100 miles north of Rostov.

A third offensive, driving southwest from Voronezh to outflank Kursk, 120 miles northwest of Kharkov, was reported surging ahead and meeting little opposition.

(Berlin finally admitted that its trapped divisions before Stalingrad were "fighting for their lives" and gave illuminating information of the situation in the Caucasus with the announcement that Axis forces had "detached themselves from the attacking enemy.")

Persons involved in a three-car collision on State Route 39 last evening were not injured, patrolmen stated. Those involved were Robert L. Foss, Forrest E. Pittinger and A. A. Booth, all of Mansfield. R. D. 1. Pittinger was pushing the Booth car when Foss skidded into the latter's auto.

LEGISLATURE WAITS WORD FROM BRICKER ON OHIO TIME CHANGE

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS — Time, which seems to wait for no man—including the Ohio general assembly—pressed its persistent problem today before administration leaders who have kept members of the house and senate from precipitate action during the past week.

Several administration leaders, cautiously feeling their way, have expressed opposition to the proposed change of Ohio from eastern war time to central war time—or moving the clocks back one hour.

The legislature expects some clear-cut decision from Governor Bricker and possibly a ruling by Attorney General Thomas J. Herbert on the time change.

Governor Bricker meets Donald Nelson, chairman of the war production board, at Baltimore Monday. It was expected that he would learn from Nelson the basis on which the federal government is opposed to the time change in Ohio.

Lieutenant Governor Paul Herbert sounded, perhaps, part of the administration's course during next week when the legislature reconvenes when he asked if the legislature could "properly or even patriotically enact a measure that is absolutely contrary to the national defense."

He posed the hypothetical case of the legislature enacting a law to fix the minimum draft age at 25 years in Ohio. "Obviously," he said, "the state could not do that."

Attorney General Herbert said that Ohioans have more important things to be concerned about than time. "We must bend every effort to the winning of the war."

When Governor Bricker returns Wednesday some solution may be ready.

HOSPITAL'S OPERATING COSTS INCREASE $29,000 DURING '42

Approximately $29,000 more was needed for operating costs at Mansfield General hospital last year than was required in 1941 to treat practically the same number of patients, Dr. A. O. Fonkalsrud, superintendent, reported at the annual board meeting last night.

The rising salary scale, cost of hospital materials and food prices were given as the main reason for this increase. Last year the total operating cost was $299,074.37 to treat 5,441 patients as compared with $270,612.13 needed to care for 5,476 cases in 1941. Total cost per patient per day was $6.48 against $5.91 for the year before.

All officers and the 15 board members were re-elected to serve through this year with Judge C. H. Huston as president. Other officers are Robert Black, vice-president; Mrs. Ephraim H. Brown, secretary, and Charles Fuchs, secretary.

The birth rate increased last year with 1,098 births recorded as compared with 999 the previous year. It was reported that 34 members of the hospital staff are now in service leaving the present staff of 22 personnel. Seven of the graduate nurses reported for duty with the armed forces as did nine of the hospital employes.

Death rate for all the persons treated was 4 per cent which included 73 emergency and accident cases where death occurred within 24 hours after admission to the hospital, Dr. Fonkalsrud stated. There were 123 institutional deaths. In the x-ray department, 5,585 cases were treated including both those hospitalized and persons coming in for special treatment. Patients cared for by the laboratory totaled 6,162 for both inside and outside cases.

Dr. Fonkalsrud announced that the total cost of running the entire institution for a day last year was $826. He had no figures for the previous year for the daily expenditure.

Board members who will continue in addition to the officers are: Harold Leach, Ross Glessner, Mrs. Tappan Ansen, Matthew Mayer, Ed W. Loughridge, Harold Arlin, Louis A. Ott, Fred Burgener, E. B. Swigart and M. Dale Ward.

JAP SOLOMONS GRASP SLIPPING

Force Whittled From 15,000 To 4,000; Allies Mop Up At Sanananda Point.

1,200 Japanese casualties had been tallied in the Sanananda area so far, with 899 previously killed in the Gona area to make a total of 2,100 enemy slain.

As the bloody Papuan campaign ended, setting the stage for new Allied offensives in northern New Guinea, Lieut.-Col. Lewis B. Puller, U. S. marines, estimated that the Japanese on Guadalcanal had lost 10,000 men in land fighting since American "leathernecks" stormed ashore on the island last Aug., leaving fewer than 4,000 of the original 15,000-man Japanese army.

A similar 15,000-man enemy army was reported annihilated in the New Guinea campaign, which began six months ago when the enemy landed at Gona and marched across the 120-mile-wide Papuan peninsula to within 32 airline miles of the Allied outpost at Port Moresby.

As Allied troops continued to hunt down enemy stragglers in the Papuan swamps, United Nations bombers struck a heavy new blow at Japanese shipping in Rabaul harbor, New Britain, sinking four vessels totaling 24,000 tons, and blasted enemy bases at Lae, Salamaua and Madang in northeast New Guinea.

All the big four-motored Allied planes returned to their bases.

On the Burma front, RAF bombers and fighters rained new havoc on the Japanese armies in widespread attacks.

British headquarters said the raiders pounded targets in central and western Burma, destroyed trucks on the road and blasted shipping on the Irrawady river and along the Bay of Bengal coast.

Field Marshal Sir Archibald P. Wavell's land forces, driving back into Burma from India, were reported to have brought up their field guns and shelled the Japanese position at Donbiak, on the Mayu peninsula, north of the big enemy base at Akyab.

Your Federal Income Tax

NO. 18: EARNED INCOME—DEDUCTIBLE EXPENSE

In arriving at the amount of earned income shown on Item 1 of the return Form 1040 (Salaries and Other Compensation for Personal Services), ordinary and necessary expenses incurred in this connection may be deducted. A distinction must be made, however, between expense attributable to one's employment, and personal expense, which may not be deducted. A few examples will illustrate.

Expenses of travel in connection with one's employment, or business, are deductible, and such expense ordinarily includes transportation, meals, and lodging, but it does not include the cost of laundry, clothes pressing, and other expenses of a nature such as would be incurred in any case.

Travel expense deductions, to be allowable, must be supported when required by the Commissioner by a statement showing (1) the nature of business, (2) number of days away from home, (3) amount of expenses incident to meals and lodging, (4) amount of other expenses claimed as a deduction.

The amount of any reimbursement of expense, or of an expense allowance, must be included in the return as part of compensation.

Expenses of a salesman in entertaining customers for the purpose of securing business, including taxicabs, theater tickets and dinners, telephone and telegraph messages, and the like, are deductible, but such expenses incurred by an officer or employe of a corporation whose contract of employment does not specifically require him to make such expenditures, are not deductible. Any reimbursement of such expense must, of course, be included in income.

Expense of getting to and from work, such as commuters' fares and bus and street car fares, are considered as personal expenses, and are not deductible.

A person on a roving commission and maintaining no permanent home is not entitled to expenses for meals and lodging while traveling.

In the case of shared travel, as in a car or hotel room, the expenses incurred must be prorated and only those applicable to the taxpayer are deductible.

The amounts spent in seeking a job, as well as the cost of traveling to the place where a new job is to be taken up, are personal expenses and are not deductible.

Membership fees in a labor union or in an organization which renders a protective service to its members, are allowable deductions.

Cost of uniforms and equipment are deductible expense to the extent (1) that such are specifically required, and (2) that they do not take the place of ordinary clothing or civil life. Uniforms of nurses, railway trainmen, barbers and surgeons, are held to take the place of ordinary clothing, and the cost of such is accordingly not deductible. Cost of military and naval uniforms and related equipment, such as gold lace and gilt buttons, is not deductible, but the cost of certain items, such as corps devices, campaign bars, and the like, which are especially required by the profession, is deductible.

The uniforms of baseball players and other professional athletes are not considered clothing adapted to general wear, and the cost of such is deductible. The same also applies to the cost of helmets, rubber coats, and rubber boots required to be purchased and worn by city firemen and the cost of rubber coats and rubber boots required to be purchased and worn by city policemen.
